

Organic Content Standard (OCS)

A certification that ensures products labeled as “organic” have been made with a specific percentage (>5%) of organic materials.

The objective of OCS is to trace, through a chain of custody, organically grown content in products, ensuring transparency and credibility in Sustainability claims

Verifying organic content

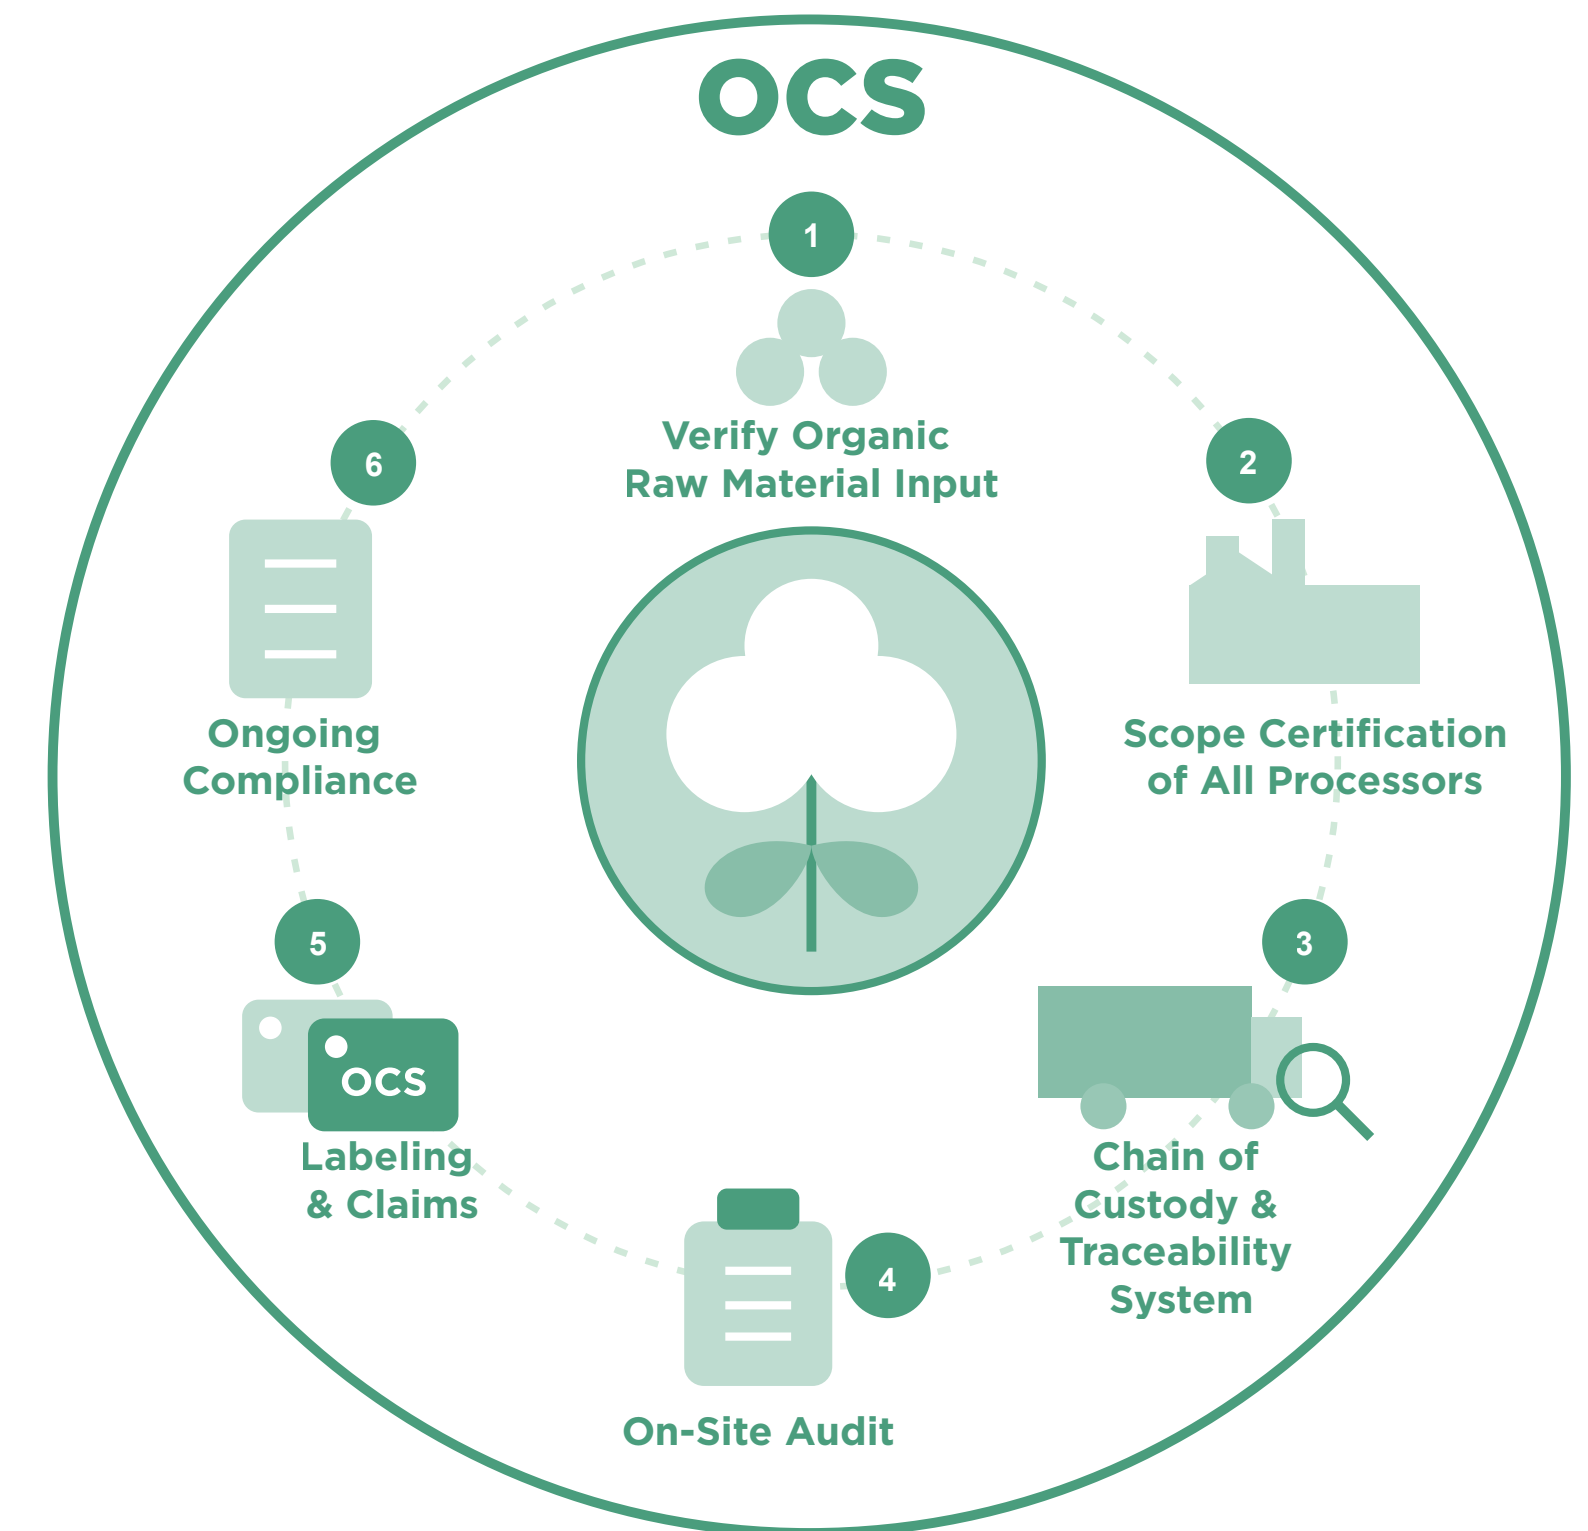

Only material from certified organic farms (under one of IFOAM's Family of Standards) is accepted to the OCS.

Chain of custody

Chain of custody documents and verifies the path certified materials take through all stages of the supply chain to the final product.

Third party certification

A professional, third-party certification body audits each stage in the supply chain.
